The image shows the Elsevier registration page. At the top, there is the Elsevier logo and the word 'ELSEVIER' in orange. Below this is the title 'Register' and the subtitle 'Create password to register'. The form contains several input fields: 'Email' with the value 'priyambodo.victoria@gmail.com', 'Given name' with the value 'Victoria', and 'Family name' with the value 'Priyambodo'. There is a 'Password' field with a masked password '.....' and a toggle icon. Below the password field, there is a text block explaining password requirements: 'Choose a unique password with minimum 8 characters. Include at least 1 number, a mix of lowercase and uppercase letters and 1 symbol to make your password strong.' This is followed by a strength indicator bar with three segments, the last of which is green and labeled 'STRONG'. Below the bar, there is a checkbox labeled 'Stay signed in (not recommended for shared devices)'. Further down, there is a paragraph about marketing communications: 'Elsevier may send you marketing communications about relevant products and events. You can unsubscribe at any time via your Elsevier account.' This is followed by a line of text: 'By continuing you agree with our Terms and conditions and Privacy policy.' At the bottom, there are two buttons: a blue 'Register' button and a white 'I already have an account' button.

ABSTRACT

Despite the importance of registration with the PCAOB, there is surprisingly little academic research on the registration process and its impact on audit outcomes (Abernathy et al., 2013). The PCAOB allows registration of audit firms from non-US countries. However, China and a few other countries do not allow the PCAOB to conduct inspections of audit firms. We take advantage of this setting to investigate whether PCAOB-registered audit firms increase audit quality in the absence of inspections and whether those changes in audit
